Capitalize for Kids Raises Record-Breaking $3 Million for Youth Mental Health at 12th Annual C4K Investors Conference

Toronto, ON – November 4, 2025 – Capitalize for Kids hosted the 12th Annual C4K Investors Conference this past October 22–23. This Canadian alternative investment conference brought together over 600 of the most influential global investment managers and North American institutional investors.

The event delivered insightful thought leadership and innovative best ideas, while also raising over $3 million, totaling $2.55 million in net proceeds that will fund improvements to the child and youth mental health system, so kids and families spend less time seeking help and more time getting it.

Adding to the momentum, Capitalize for Kids launched the inaugural C4K Commission for Kids Day on October 24th, in partnership with Beacon Securities Limited. On this day, 100% of commissions from Beacon's equity trading desk were donated to the Capitalize for Kids Foundation, raising more than $154,000 to invest in kids' mental health.

"We are deeply grateful to all of our partners, sponsors, speakers, supporters, volunteers, and attendees who made this year's conference a record success," said Angela Simo Brown, President & CEO of Capitalize for Kids. "The funds raised today will go towards supporting our mission to create lasting, systemic improvements in Canada's child and youth mental health system. This ensuring kids and families get the mental health care they need, when they need it."

Since its inception, the Capitalize for Kids Investors Conference has united Canada's investment community, offering a platform where finance meets philanthropy. Through this generosity and commitment, millions of dollars have been raised to improve efficiency, create digital infrastructure, provide access and navigation, and drive innovation in youth mental health care.
